

On 1 July 2008 we marked an historic day for our firm in the Far East Area. On that day, Ernst & Young implemented a bold move by bringing together the 15 countries and territories of the Far East into one integrated business unit. The integrated Far East Area includes some 20,000 people across the emerging and developing markets of Asia.

It means more opportunities to build diverse careers across accounts, geographies and industries, the promotion of inclusiveness across our diverse cultures, and better and greater access to world-class learning and development.

- Learn more about the new Far East Area and how it can broaden your exposure and enrich your work experience
- Talk to our partners, executives and seniors to learn about their experiences and the abundant opportunities available to you at Ernst & Young
- Learn more about Ernst & Young's culture and the way we develop our people

